

As I was sitting on the bus I saw red and blue lights flashing on and off. I wondered if the cops were in front of us or behind us. As I tried to look, someone said in a soft voice, "We're here." The Mississippi Children's Museum was the museum for kids. If you're an adult, it will take you back and make you feel like a kid again. The museum is the place where everyone can have fun. There are more than 15 stations, like milking a cow or making a house. There is always something to do. Parents in the morning can go and get a coffee and relax at a table. This is the place to go if you want to have fun.
