

It's just a few minutes until we go in the museum. We were right in front of the doorway. I hear the numbers 3.....2.....1.....go! I ran through the paper. It looked beautiful.

The Mississippi Children's Museum is the best place I've ever been to. I liked three stations: The Lumberyard, The Volcano Room and the Gastro Climber. The Lumberyard was when two people control a crane to pick up some metal blocks and bricks and carry them to the other side.

I wish that was my home to live in. That would be so awesome! You would get to do every station available. If you ever got to spend the night, then you would probably say you are so lucky. They also have a food station so you can eat there instead of leaving to eat.

You should really check out that museum. It's actually a big humongous playground. If you went to the museum, you would probably want to stay.
